Annual Management Report of Fund Performance

MANAGEMENT REPORT OF FUND PERFORMANCE

WisdomTree Asset Management Canada, Inc. (“WisdomTree”) is pleased to provide you with the Annual Management Report of Fund Performance (“MRFP”) for the WisdomTree Yield Enhanced Canada Short-Term Aggregate Bond Index ETF (the “ETF”) for the year ended December 31, 2018. The ETF trades on the Toronto Stock Exchange (the “TSX”) under the ticker symbol CAGS.

WisdomTree is the trustee, manager and promoter of the ETF. Mellon Investments Corporation (the “Investment Advisor”) is the investment advisor to the ETF.

Investment Objectives and Strategies

The investment objective of the ETF is to track, to the extent possible, the price and yield performance of the Bloomberg Barclays Canadian Short Aggregate Enhanced Yield Index (the “Index”), before fees and expenses. The Index is designed to broadly capture the short-term Canadian investment grade fixed income securities market while seeking to enhance yield within desired risk parameters and constraints.

The investment strategy of the ETF is to invest in and hold a proportionate share of the constituent securities of the Index or otherwise invest in a manner intended to track the price and yield performance of the Index. The ETF may also invest in or use certain other securities to obtain exposure to the price and yield performance of the Index.

Risk

No material changes were made which affected the overall level of risk associated with an investment in the ETF for the year ended December 31, 2018. The overall level of risk associated with an investment in the ETF remains as disclosed in the most recent prospectus.

Results of Operations

For the 12 months ended December 31, 2018, the ETF returned 1.45% versus the Index return of 1.70%. The difference in performance of the ETF relative to its benchmark index is related to management fees and other miscellaneous factors.

The broad Canadian bond market, as measured by the Bloomberg Barclays Canadian Aggregate Index, returned 1.29% in CAD terms over the same period. The broad short-term Canadian bond market, as measured by the Bloomberg Barclays Canadian Aggregate 1-5 Year Composite Index, returned -1.85% in CAD during the same period.

The period was characterized by higher-than-normal volatility for equities, particularly in Q1 and Q4, as a result of trade tensions and a partial global slowdown. The volatility in the global markets carried over into the bond markets as well. Particularly, these volatile equity market bouts caused “risk-off” buying into safer bond asset classes. The strategy’s credit overweight served as a headwind this year, as the Canadian credit underperformed the Canadian treasury market within the broad short aggregate benchmark by approximately 14bps in 2018. Similarly, credit market underperformed the government-related market within the short aggregate benchmark by approximately 24bps in 2018. Because of this, the Funds underperformance from sector/asset allocation when compared to the broad benchmark due to its credit overweight and treasury underweight.

However, shortly after the ETF launched in late June of 2017, the Bank of Canada (BOC) surprised the markets and rose their key interest rate by 25bps to 1.00%. Since then, the BOC has raised rates 3 more times in 2018 to 1.75%, driving shorter nominal yields higher. However, similar to the U.S. yield curve, the Canadian yield curve flattened significantly. The very short end of the yield curve, represented by the 3-month tenured bonds, rose in yield by 44bps over the year. Conversely, the 10-year tenor decreased in yield by 25bps. As a result, 10-year spreads decreased over the period. For context, the Canadian 10-year Treasury yield was at 1.5% when the ETF launched.

Expectations for the BOC in 2018 was that they would raise rates again in 2018, with potentially more rate hikes to follow to indirectly match the U.S. Federal Reserve’s same intentions. Indeed, this did happen, as the U.S. Fed raised 4 times and the BOC raised three times. The ETF benefited from its shorter-duration nature over the broad, longer duration Bloomberg Barclays Canadian Aggregate Index, which was more negatively affected by rising interest rates. In addition, the strategy’s credit overweight was not beneficial this year, as credit underperformed the other asset classes of the broad benchmark given the market concerns.

² Net assets and distributions are based on the actual number of units outstanding at the relevant time. The increase (decrease) from operations is based on the weighted average number of units outstanding over the period.

⁶ The ETF's portfolio turnover rate indicates how actively the ETF's portfolio manager trades its portfolio investments. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the ETF buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the period. The higher a portfolio's turnover rate in a period, the greater the trading costs payable by the ETF in the period, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the period. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high turnover rate and the performance of the ETF.
