Annual Management Report of Fund Performance

MANAGEMENT REPORT OF FUND PERFORMANCE

WisdomTree Asset Management Canada, Inc. (“WisdomTree”) is pleased to provide you with the Annual Management Report of Fund Performance (“MRFP”) for the WisdomTree U.S. Quality Dividend Growth Variably Hedged Index ETF (the “ETF”) for the year ended December 31, 2018. The ETF trades on the Toronto Stock Exchange (the “TSX”) under the ticker symbol DQD.

WisdomTree is the trustee, manager and promoter of the ETF. Mellon Investments Corporation (the “Investment Advisor”) is the investment advisor to the ETF.

Investment Objectives and Strategies

The investment objective of the ETF is to track, to the extent possible, the price and yield performance of the WisdomTree U.S. Quality Dividend Growth Index Variably CAD-Hedged (the “Index”), before fees and expenses. The Index is a fundamentally weighted index designed to provide exposure to dividend-paying U.S. companies with growth characteristics, while at the same time variably hedging currency exposure to fluctuations between the value of the U.S. dollar and the Canadian dollar.

The investment strategy of the ETF is to invest in and hold a proportionate share of the constituent securities of the Index, or other securities, to track the price and yield performance of the Index. The ETF uses derivative instruments to variably hedge currency fluctuations in the relative value of the U.S. dollar against the Canadian dollar, which may range from 0% to 100%, and is based on certain quantitative signals (namely, interest rate differentials, momentum and value).

Risk

No material changes were made which affected the overall level of risk associated with an investment in the ETF for the year ended December 31, 2018. The overall level of risk associated with an investment in the ETF remains as disclosed in the most recent prospectus.

Results of Operations

For the 12 months ended December 31, 2018, the ETF returned -0.74% versus the Index return of -0.18%. The difference in performance of the ETF relative to its benchmark index is related to management fees and other miscellaneous factors.

The U.S. equity market, as measured by the S&P 500 Index, returned -4.38% in U.S. dollar terms and 4.23% in Canadian dollar terms for the 12-month period ended December 31, 2018. The period was characterized by significant market volatility, particularly in the fourth quarter. At the end of the period, the S&P 500 erased its nine month gain of 10.56% to end 2018 down 4.38%. This was the first calendar year loss for the index since the 2008 financial crisis. Positive returns through the third quarter were driven by robust corporate profit and economic growth, aided by the benefit of U.S. corporate tax reform. Key drivers of the broad fourth quarter sell-off included: concerns about the sustainability of U.S. corporate earnings growth, U.S. credit quality, as well as concerns about slowing global economic growth and trade. During the period, the Federal Reserve also raised the benchmark rate four times, equating to a cumulative increase of 100bps in 2018. In the last 6 months of 2018, the Consumer Price Index decreased from its 2018 peak. Meanwhile, U.S. inflation expectations, as measured by the difference between the nominal and real 10-year U.S. Treasury yields, fell below the 2% threshold — a signal from the market that further rate increases in late 2018 and beyond may not be warranted.

Defensive, domestic-focused sectors like Healthcare and Utilities outperformed the S&P 500 Index returning 6.47% and 4.11%, respectively. Energy, Materials, Industrials, and Financials, which are more sensitive to domestic and global economic growth, underperformed the S&P 500 Index returning -18.10%, -14.70%, and -13.32%, -13.04%, respectively. During this time growth stocks outperformed value stocks. The ETF faced tailwinds as the portfolio was overweight Healthcare by about 4%, and underweight Financials by about 5% relative to the S&P 500 Index.

The U.S. dollar strengthened in 2018 driven by strong economic growth and rising interest rates; the U.S. dollar gained approximately 8.48% to the Canadian dollar over the period. The variable currency hedge implemented by the ETF was successful in reducing some of the currency risk in the portfolio over the period. The variable hedge allowed the ETF to mitigate some of the headwinds that a Canadian-based investor would have experienced had they been fully hedged to the U.S. dollar.

² Net assets and distributions are based on the actual number of units outstanding at the relevant time. The increase (decrease) from operations is based on the weighted average number of units outstanding over the period.

⁴ This information is provided as at December 31 of the year shown.

⁷ Amount represents less than 0.005%.
